An urgent matter...

The Connecticut State Innovation Model (SIM) will transform the CT health care system. Fueled by a 4-year, $45 million grant from the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Innovation, scores of healthcare providers, government agencies, employers, consumers, and payers are working together to establish a whole-person-centered healthcare system that:

- Improves community health and eliminates health inequities
- Ensures superior access, quality, and care experience
- Empowers individuals to actively participate in their health and health care
- Improves affordability by reducing healthcare costs

Be the voice of rural eastern CT...

Help plan the future of health care transformation - come together to explore the status of healthcare delivery in rural settings and respond to challenges of new initiatives and models.

Learn about the challenges of new initiatives and models across the state and region.
